Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 31 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly fine tonight and tomorrow. Colder to end the week.

This Evening and Tonight:
Becoming cloudy overnight with outbreaks of light rain and drizzle spreading across the region, though mainly confined to western hills. Drier again through the early hours with a few clear spells and turning colder. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Thursday:
Much colder on Thursday but dry and mostly bright with some sunny spells although perhaps cloudier over coasts and hills. Feeling chilly with the breeze from the North Sea. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Mainly dry and rather cool through Friday and Saturday with sunny spells, light winds and a risk of overnight frosts. Bright and breezy early Sunday. Colder with rain arriving later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.